

Intensive Language Study Abroad

For Beginning and Intermediate Levels

What to do next:

Program Selection

Visit your study abroad office to talk with an adviser about selecting a program that's right for you. Study abroad advisers can tell you more about the language levels offered, the number of credits available, and program costs.

Academic Planning

All students who participate in language study as part of their study abroad experience will be referred to the appropriate language faculty as part of the academic planning process.

Language study abroad may be used to meet language requirements (i.e., GPT for UMTC CLA students), enhance résumés, fulfill elective degree requirements, and prepare for graduate school.

Application Process

Your study abroad office can assist you with the program application process. They can also help you investigate scholarships and help you better understand how your financial aid can be applied to study abroad.
